WATCH THE BIRDIE

ERNIE ELS HITS A CRUCIAL SHOT ON THE 18TH HOLE TO CLINCH BRITISH OPEN TITLE PAGE 12

SASKATOON metro®

Monday, July 23, 2012

News worth sharing.

metronews.ca | twitter.com/metrosaskatoon | facebook.com/metrosaskatoon

Ness Creek gets its groove on

Good vibes. Festival sees wide array of patrons while crowds and volunteers increase

DORIAN GEIGER
dorian.geiger@metronews.ca

From what began as a small gathering of tree planters in a forest, Ness Creek Music Festival has evolved into a true Saskatchewan summer spectacle in its 22nd year.

Encompassing a wide demographic of festival-goers, nature enthusiasts, music fans, obscure entertainers, families, children and venders from across the world descended on the Big River area for four days of harmony, community, music and nature from July 19 to 22.

Ness Creek's main attraction was music, with out-of-towners like Hey Ocean! and the Besnard Lakes bringing large crowds to the main stage. Local bands We Were Lovers, Young Benjamins, Castle River, the Karpinka Brothers and Factor and the Chandeliers also performed.

"All of my dreams came true this weekend. I'm thankful for all the volunteers, musicians, cultural ambassadors and festival-goers for contributing to another successful festival," said Ness Creek entertainment co-ordinator Debra Aitken.

Saskatoon teacher Jade Hagel has attended Ness Creek since she was a child. Now 31, Hagel returned to Ness Creek after a five-year hiatus.

"It has probably tripled (in size) from 10 years ago. It's jam-packed. It used to be a quiet, hippie tree planters' kind of festival and now it has grown into something all-ages. There's more diversity," she said.

"It's about connecting with old friends and meeting tons of new ones," said Carlie Letts, Ness Creek volunteer co-ordinator.

"We work hard, but it's all worth it when you see that perfect Ness moment and know that you had a hand in making it all happen."

Catch Metro's photo gallery and video of Ness Creek at metronews.ca.

Follow Dorian Geiger on Twitter @dgiegs

With a little help from friends

Ness Creek's volunteer legion

Roughly 4,000 people funneled into Ness Creek this weekend. The festival also recruited 400 volunteers, up 150 from last year.

This Ness Creek festival-goer is one of the event's many patrons who strove to project positive vibes at the weekend-long music, arts and ecological festival that took place in the backwoods of northern Saskatchewan near Big River.
DORIAN GEIGER/METRO

The ball's in her court

For basketball player Krista Phillips, London '12 is a childhood dream come true PAGE 2

Dark night

Colorado shooting suspect James Holmes was rejected for membership at a gun range due to his 'freakish' voice-mail message PAGE 4

It's a wayback playback

Some of the biggest hitmakers of the '90s like No Doubt are back in the spotlight PAGE 7

GIVING CANADA'S ATHLETES
THE VISION TO SUCCEED
LASIK MD
VISION
LASIK starting at $490/eye* • FREE Consultation: 1-855-784-2020 • lasikmd.com/teamlasikmd

1 NEWS

On the web

So much for the Olympic spirit

For some in Athens, the Olympics are not a celebratory affair. The birthplace of the Games is collectively groaning after hosting the 2004 event. Go to metronews.ca to find out why the public is so unhappy.

Cute little crocs

Two endangered Cuban crocodiles have hatched at the National Zoo in Washington. Go to metronews.ca to see scientists feed the cute baby crocs before showing them to the public.

Mobile news

A small part in an upcoming sci-fi remake has turned into a treasure chest of publicity for a Canadian actress who plays a three-breasted prostitute in the flick. Scan the code to find out more.

Battlefords

Man dead after vehicle ran into roadside pond

A 26-year old man from Poundmaker First Nations is dead after a 2001 Ford Mustang ended up submerged in a pond near Highway 40, roughly 30 kilometres west of the Battlefords on July 19.

At roughly 9:15 p.m., an officer with the Battlefords Rural Detachment of the RCMP was flagged down and advised the car was submerged. When the RCMP arrived, they found an individual in the water who indicated another person was still inside the car.

The RCMP officer dove into the water in an attempt to save the passenger. Once on shore, attempts to perform CPR by the officer and emergency personal were unsuccessful.

Robert Wilfred Badger, 29, from Poundmaker First Nations, faces a number of charges including impaired driving causing death. METRO

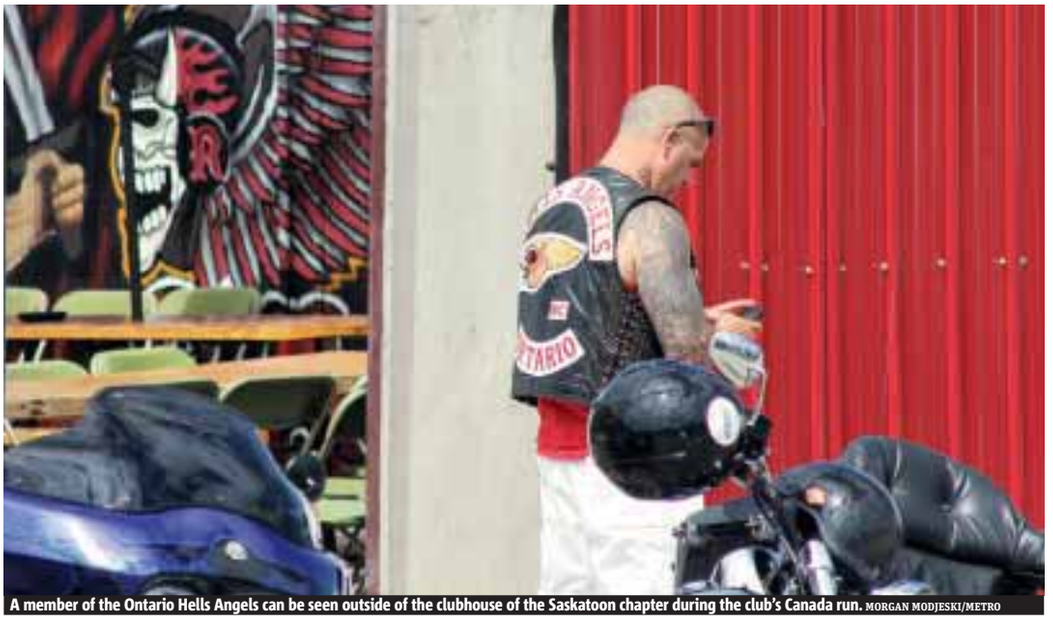
Weekend game

Yellow Jackets take loss badly

The Saskatoon Yellow Jackets took a tough loss against the Swift Current Indians 15-9 over the weekend.

"The final result was not what we were looking for, but we have our destiny in our own hands," said assistant coach, Rye Pothakos, noting the team still has several games to play before playoffs.

"Every time you take the field, you go out to win, so it wasn't the result we were looking for." METRO



A member of the Ontario Hells Angels can be seen outside of the clubhouse of the Saskatoon chapter during the club's Canada run. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Hells Angels run without a glitch

Reaction. Police say they're 'really happy' with end result

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

Roughly 250 Hells Angels and 200 more associate bikers departed from the city of Saskatoon on Sunday after the club's 2012 Canada run.

Len Isnor, sergeant detective and program coordinator with the Ontario Provincial Police's Biker Enforcement Unit said overall the run went smoothly.

"They were on their best behaviour and there are no incidents to report," said Isnor who was one of many out-of-province officers assisting the Saskatoon Police Service.

"We're really happy with the way things went this weekend," he said.

When asked if the strong police presence contributed to the incident-free weekend, he said, "Absolutely ... that's the way it works best — when all the police services work together — no one police force can take on organized crime."

The Hells Angels seemed pleased with the run and while most of the members declined comment on the event, one member — drinking a coffee outside of the Saskatoon clubhouse — said, "It was a good time."

Another member in a group of Hells Angels at the Esso on Idylwyld Drive — when asked about the event — said, "Ask the cops who have been following us around all weekend."

Some residents in Saskatoon were more fascinated with the group than afraid.

William Henderson, who was walking by the Hells Angels Clubhouse Thursday morning when members were arriving said, "I think it's pretty cool that they're all getting together here, honestly."

National presence

The Saskatchewan chapter of the Hells Angels has never been charged with an offense, but chapters in British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec have been known to be involved with criminal activity, and nationally the Hells Angels are considered a criminal organization.

KRISTA PHILLIPS

Saskatoon player celebrated parents' anniversary with Olympic berth

While wearing the Team Canada jersey on July 1, Saskatoon's Krista Phillips had something special to celebrate — and so did her parents John and Janet.

Not only did Phillips capture an Olympic berth in Turkey on Canada Day with the women's national basketball team, but the country's birthday also marked her parents' 29th wedding anniversary.

"It was a pretty awesome anniversary present. It was very intense. We were so thrilled," said Janet, who watched the game from Saskatoon on the Internet.

The Canadian women's basketball team has not appeared in the Olympics since the Sydney Summer Games in 2000. The Olympic berth is also a momentous career feat for Phillips, who has already played professionally in the United States and Australia.

"It's huge. I've been dreaming of it since I started playing basketball in Grade 3 or 4. It's amazing to have accomplished your dreams," explained the 24-year-old.

Phillips flew to London on July 20 with Team Canada and will compete against Russia on July 28.

You're the only player from Saskatchewan on Team Canada. What's that like?

It's what makes our team special. Not everyone is from Ontario and not everyone is from British Columbia.

You're six-foot-six. What's it like being the tallest person wherever you go?

I hardly notice it. It never seems to get old. I wouldn't be here without my height so I just embrace it and enjoy.

How important is it playing for your country after a decade-plus of Canada failing to qualify for the Olympics?

Up until now we've experienced quite a bit of heartache. To get there 12 years later is monumental for us. It's a great step in the right direction for the women's program.

DORIAN GEIGER/METRO IN SASKATOON

Krista Phillips, a Saskatoon native and Team Canada women's basketball player, brings the ball up court at an Olympic qualifying match against Japan in Turkey. CONTRIBUTED

Missing persons. New database should include DNA, families say

A national database to help identify missing persons and unidentified remains is more than a year away, but families and experts say that DNA is the missing piece of the puzzle that the initiative needs.

Judy Peterson has been a proponent of such a database since her daughter, Lindsey Jill Nicholls, went missing in 1993.

"I think the DNA databank is just the missing piece," she said. "I believe it will happen, I just can't understand why it's taking so long."

Peterson started a petition in 2003 called Lindsey's Law, calling for DNA from missing persons and unidentified remains to be added to the National DNA Data Bank, which was set up in 2000 to help police with their investigations.

Melanie Alix's son Dylan Koshman went missing in Edmonton in October 2008 and she too has been petitioning the government for such an addition to the databank.

Alix and her husband gave DNA samples to police in Edmonton after her son's disappearance, but they were not accessible to law enforcement in other provinces because there is no national DNA database for missing persons and unidentified remains

Lindsey Nicholls, 14, went missing in 1993. THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new index called the National Centre for Missing Persons and Unidentified Remains would store descriptive information on these cases and allow for them to be compared nationally for the first time when it launches in late 2013, but it won't include DNA.

The federal government has been resistant to amending the National DNA Data Bank to include the thousands of missing persons and hundreds of unidentified bodies across the country. It cites privacy concerns and high costs.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Students back on the streets

Thousands of students and their supporters march in Montreal on Sunday during a mass demonstration against the Quebec Liberal government's policies, including university tuition hikes and Bill 78. Student groups say they are sending a message that they will be ready for a fight if Premier Jean Charest decides to call an election.

PETER MCCABE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Happy ending. Bullied bus monitor thanks public for donation drive

An American school-bus monitor who was verbally abused and tormented by students is now mulling over what to do with her embarrassment of riches.

A video showing Karen Klein, 68, being tormented and insulted on the bus ended up online and caught the eye of Max Sidirov of Toronto. He launched a fundraising drive on Indiegogo.com to pay for a holiday.

Sidirov, 25, set the initial fundraising target for $5,000, but donors kicked in $703,873 by the time his campaign wrapped up Friday night.

Klein said she would like to be able to thank everyone personally for their support, but with numbers climbing into the thousands it's just not possible.

"Hopefully everybody out there knows how much I appreciate everything," she said.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By the numbers

$703,873

Amount raised in an online fundraising drive set up by Max Sidirov of Toronto to help send bullied bus driver Karen Klein on vacation.

Body-parts case

Jun Lin's mother addresses service

The parents of Jun Lin took part in an emotional public memorial on Saturday as Montreal's Chinese community gathered to remember the student two months after he was brutally killed.

Lin's mother, Zhigui Du, gave a heart-wrenching address at a Montreal church that brought many in the pews to tears.

"When a child dies, a parent's heart dies, too," Du said in Mandarin, as an interpreter translated into French. "He is gone. He was taken so fast."

Luka Rocco Magnotta has pleaded not guilty to several charges in connection with Lin's death. THE CANADIAN PRESS

HYUNDAI
SASKATOON HYUNDAI
PRE-OWNED SUPERSTORE
our BIGGEST SALE OF THE YEAR!
orange tag DAYS
FIRST EVER! USED VEHICLE SILENT AUCTION
NO RESERVE BIDDING
LOW RESERVE BIDDING
PAY WHAT YOU WANT TO PAY!
BID ONLINE! Go to saskatoonhyundai.com to make an offer on over 30 units!
MY TRADE-IN HOW MUCH IS IT WORTH?
WE WILL GIVE YOU AN ESTIMATE OVER THE PHONE!
664-6767
CERTIFIED PRE-OWNED
EXTENDS YOUR EXISTING COVERAGE WITH UP TO 3 YEARS OR 60,000 KMS ADDITIONAL HYUNDAI FACTORY WARRANTY
FFUN >> Saskatoon Hyundai
306.664.6767 | saskatoonhyundai.com
2035 Idylwyld Drive North, Saskatoon, SK
Savings up to $10,995!
Interest Rates from 1.98%
FIND US ON FACEBOOK!

Details emerge about Aurora theatre rampage suspect

Colorado. Holmes was neuroscience student who quit PhD in June

The suspect in the Colorado shooting rampage displayed behaviour that a gun-range owner thought was "bizarre," but it is still unclear if anyone at the university where he studied had any hint of his plans.

Police said James Holmes began buying guns at Denver-area stores nearly two months before Friday's shooting. He also received at least 50 packages in four months at his home and the University of Colorado, Denver that authorities are investigating to see whether they contained materials for the potentially deadly booby traps that police found in his apartment.

At the same time, the quiet 24-year-old was in the final weeks of the first year of a rigorous PhD neuroscience program, where he took a three-part final exam required for students to progress in the program and was scheduled to give a presentation on microRNA biomarkers before abruptly leaving in June.

Holmes is being held without bond on suspicion of multiple counts of first-degree murder after a shooting rampage minutes into a premiere of the new Batman film The Dark Knight Rises in Aurora early Friday that left 12 people dead and 58 injured.

He is scheduled for an initial court hearing Monday and has been assigned a public defender.

Amid the continuing investigation of Holmes and his background Sunday was a day for healing and remembrance in Aurora, with U.S. President Barack Obama arriving to visit with families of the victims and a vigil planned for later in the evening. Congregations across Colorado prayed for the shooting victims and their relatives.

Holmes was being held in solitary confinement at a Denver-area county detention facility and was not co-operating with authorities, Aurora police Chief Dan Oates said.

"He lawyered up. He's not talking to us," the chief said.

Authorities are working with FBI behavioural analysts and are looking into Holmes' relationships to find a motive, which could take months, Oates said.

The owner of a gun range said that Holmes applied to join the club last month but never became a member because of his behaviour and a "bizarre" message on his voice mail. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Christine Watson, left, and her mother, Kathy, pay their respects to fellow parishioner Rebecca Ann Wingo at a memorial in Aurora, Colo., on Sunday.
AARON ONTIVEROZ/THE DENVER POST/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Norway pauses to mark anniversary of massacre

Norway on Sunday paused to commemorate the 77 victims of a bomb and gun massacre that shocked the peaceful nation one year ago, a tragedy that the prime minister said had brought Norwegians together in defence of democracy and tolerance.

In a wreath-laying ceremony at the bomb site, Prime Minister Jens Stoltenberg said Anders Behring Breivik had failed in his declared goal of destroying Norway's commitment to being an inclusive, multicultural society.

"The bomb and the gun shots were meant to change Norway," Stoltenberg told a sombre crowd of a few hundred people at the ceremony. "The Norwegian people answered by embracing our values. The perpetrator lost. The people won."

Tarps still cover windows of bomb-damaged buildings on the plaza, and large cement road blocks stop all but pedestrian traffic. Mounted police and officers with bomb-sniffing dogs were on site Sunday, but the security was not overbearing, as if to show that Norway was still an open society.

Survivors and families of victims gathered for a private ceremony on the island. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The attack

Anders Behring Breivik, a 33-year-old right-wing fanatic, has admitted to the July 22, 2011, attacks: A bombing in the government district in Oslo, killing eight, and a shooting rampage that left 69 dead at the left-wing Labour Party's youth camp on Utoya island.

Theodor Lindhjem, 2, lays a flower outside a cathedral in Oslo Sunday.
LISE ASERUD/NTB SCANPIX/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China

Deadly flooding may not be over

The heaviest rain to hit Beijing in six decades killed at least 10 people and left cars and buses submerged. Ten other storm deaths were reported elsewhere as China braced Sunday for more downpours. Saturday's rain knocked down trees in Beijing and trapped cars and buses in waist-deep water. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China's Sichuan province on Sunday.
LAN ZITAO/XINHUA/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Russia

Officials blamed for flood deaths

Russian police have detained three officials accused of failing to properly warn and evacuate residents in a southern region where floods killed scores of people this month, state investigators said Sunday. The flooding in the Black Sea region killed 171 people after torrential downpours. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Poland

Deportations remembered

Members of Poland's Jewish community and other Poles have marked the 70th anniversary of the first deportations from the Warsaw ghetto in 1942 with a memorial march through the city. There have never been major commemorations for the start of deportations to death camps on July 22, 1942. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A woman ties the names of Holocaust victims onto a former orphanage.
ALIK KEPLICZ/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bulgaria

Bomber not ID'd after autopsies

Autopsies have provided officials with new information about the suicide bomber who killed five Israelis and a Bulgarian bus driver in the resort town of Burgas. But the attacker's identity appeared to remain unknown, and Bulgaria's government was investigating whether there was an accomplice. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Few celebrate third anniversary of end of Great Recession

Global recovery. Three years on and trillions spent, economies still fragile in U.S. and Europe, and Canada's position is deceiving

Few are noting the occasion, but about now Canada and the rest of the world should be celebrating the third anniversary marking the end of the Great Recession.

It was in the third quarter of 2009 — the July-September months — that Canada and many other major advanced nations began to breathe a little easier in the knowledge they had peered into the economic abyss and somehow survived.

Yet there are no signs of rejoicing, or even relief.

At separate stock-taking events last week, U.S. Federal Reserve chairman Ben Bernanke, Bank of Canada governor Mark Carney and the International Monetary Fund each had different versions of the same message — the global economy still hangs by a thread, growth is painfully slow and full employment is years away.

Europe is suffering through a Japan-style lost decade.

Canadians have been told repeatedly they have done better than most, and the message has become the reality.

France's L'Express magazine last week declared Canada "number 1" in a cover story, encouraging readers to pack up and head to the promised land.

The reality is a little more nuanced, though Canada looks awfully good next to much of Europe, which is now expected to be in recession the rest of the year.

But even in Canada, things might have turned out better. The first full year of recovery saw the output expand by an acceptable 3.2 per cent, but slow to 2.4 per cent in 2011. Depending on the forecast, it will likely slow further to between 1.5 and 2.1 per cent this year.

And that's gross domestic product, which includes population growth of about 1.2 per cent a year. Take away the fact there are more people in the country producing and spending, and the picture looks very different.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aiming for average

On a per-capita basis, Canadians are still not back to where they were before the 2008-09 crisis.

- Per-capita GDP in inflation-adjusted dollars peaked at $40,015.79 in the fourth quarter of 2007, and had only returned to $39,648.11 in the first quarter this year.

Murdoch retreats

Media mogul Rupert Murdoch, pictured entering the News Corp. building in New York last year, has resigned as a director of a number of News Corp. subsidiary boards in Britain and the United States, a spokeswoman confirmed Saturday. The announcement suggests that Murdoch may be distancing himself from his British newspaper interests, which have been shaken to the core by a widespread phone-hacking scandal. LOUIS LANZANO/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Technology

Lab working on security shoe

A new lab at Carnegie Mellon University is working on shoe insoles that monitor access to high-security areas, like nuclear power plants.

The idea is based on research showing that people have unique feet and ways of walking. Sensors in the footpad collect data and check the patterns.

One expert says the technology could raise privacy questions. Attorney Lee Tien with the Electronic Frontier Foundation says it's a potential tracking device.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Beyond coffee

Starbucks juiced with Evolution

Starbucks on Friday announced the opening of three more Evolution Fresh Inc. juice stores, in addition to the one it opened earlier this year.

The Seattle-based company is also expanding distribution of ready-to-drink bottles of Evolution juice in stores to capitalize on the rapidly growing market for premium juices.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A LIFE SPANNING 3 CENTURIES

URBAN COMPASS
Paul Sullivan
regina@metronews.ca

There's a woman living somewhere in Saskatchewan who was born on July 1, 1899.

That would make her 113.

We don't know her name. The Ministry of Health can only remark on her age, which is remarkable indeed. She's not one of the top-10 oldest people alive, but she's probably in the top 20.

The oldest person alive, by the way, is Besse Cooper of the U.S., who is closing in on 116 (115 years, 328 days as I write). Our Saskatchewan supercentenarian — as anyone over 100 is called — is certainly older than Merle Barwis of B.C., who had previously been thought to be Canada's oldest person, 111 years young.

Imagine being born in 1899. First, you were lucky to be born. Antibiotics weren't invented until 1935, and the infant mortality rate was more than one in 10.

Once you were old enough to look around, things looked a lot different than they do now. Saskatchewan wasn't even a province until 1905; in 1899 it was part of the Northwest Territories. Pile-of-Bones wasn't incorporated as a city until 1903, and Saskatoon followed in 1906.

113 years young

"Saskatchewan Woman has seen it all, including the entire 20th century, from beginning to end."

A few things were missing, like automobiles, washing machines, refrigerators, bottles, radios, TVs, etc. Not to mention the Internet. Never mind Amazon or eBay: You had to buy your winter woollies from the Eaton's catalogue and hope they delivered out your way.

Horses and carts were how you got from here to there. If you were lucky, you could take the train, though who had money for a train ride? The average yearly wage for a working man was $375. Of course, a pound of coffee cost 35 cents in 1899; now you're lucky to find a (small) cup for under $2.

Saskatchewan Woman has seen it all, including the entire 20th century, from beginning to end. She's been ringing in the new year longer than Dick Clark. In fact, at the rate she's going, she could outlast Ryan Seacrest.

While people are living longer generally — the average Canadian life expectancy is 80.7 (we're tied for 10th with France and Macau) — there's something exceptional going on in Saskatchewan. StatsCan says that Saskatchewan has the highest rate of people over 100 in the country, twice the natural average. They build them to last in Next Year Country, probably so they'll get to next year.

Saskatchewan Woman has lived long enough to see what few expected: an era of unprecedented prosperity. The population of the province was over 900,000 in 1951; it has only recently started growing again, as people come looking for work in a place where there's a job for everyone who wants one.

In fact, Saskatchewan Woman has outlasted Next Year Country. She's the oldest citizen of Now Country. Happy birthday! Now tell us your name so the Queen can send you a birthday card … before you outlast her too.

Beach volleyball

London weather threatens itsy-bitsy bikinis

Two piece or not two piece: That is the question.

Chilly weather and evening matches at the London Olympics may force a cover-up in beach volleyball — from bikinis to long johns.

"We need it to keep our muscles warm," Australian competitor Tamsin Hinchley said Sunday. "It's an extremely strenuous sport."

Yes, but let's get real. Long sleeves and leggings aren't exactly the main draw for lots of beach volleyball fans.

Asked if she thought it would be a turnoff for some fans, Hinchley said no, she thought the atmosphere would still be rocking at Horse Guards Parade.

And the gear has already been a common — even if not entirely popular — sight on the world beach volleyball tour this year. It's now part of the uniform, Hinchley said.

"Obviously we're that sport, we're the sport that wears the bikinis and we're the sport that's physically out there," she said. "But we're jumping and running and sliding on the sand. We'll be using (cold-weather gear) to benefit us physically. We'll definitely be taking it."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The running of the brides

DARKO VOJINOVIC/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOS

On your mark ...

It's as if they are racing to the altar

Brides prepare for a race in central Belgrade, Serbia, on Sunday.

The winner and two runners-up of the Bridal Race, organized by a local magazine, receive numerous awards and the wedding gown they chose to race in.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A runaway bride's footwear.

Bride wars

50

About 50 women took part in the event, which was a 150-metre sprint through Belgrade's streets.

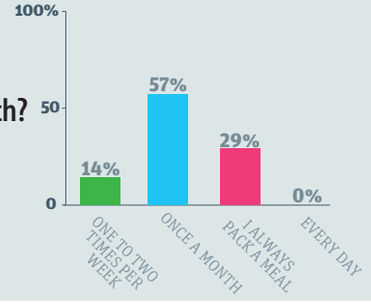
Just run with it

Just as Spain has the Running of the Bulls, Serbia has the running of the brides every year.

Metropolitan Panel

Register at metropolitanpanel.ca and take the quick poll

How often do you eat out for lunch?



Twitter

@Ivana_Something: What kind of person wears high heels to the #yxe #Farmers-Market?

@Saskadan: Prospective hells angel from #yvr downs triple espresso and grabs his trays of lattes funny moment @Starbucks in #yxe

@Bjerlanb: Thanks to @SaskatoonPolice this weekend for ensuring safety while the "HA" were in town- #goodcrew #fightingcrime #yxe

@voguestoxic: Awks when you ask your server to change your bill and she is going to do it and comes back with the same bill. #bimbo #yxe#sportsontap

@LLevsen: Getting sick of these extended Sask power outages. 4th one this year SW of #yxe

metro
President Bill McDonald • Vice-President & Group Publisher, Metro Western Canada Steve Shrout • Editor-in-Chief Charlotte Empey • Deputy Editor Fernando Carneiro • National Deputy Editor, Digital Quin Parker • Managing Editor, Saskatoon Tara Campbell • Managing Editor, News & Business Amber Shortt • Managing Editor, Life & Entertainment Dean Lisk • Vice-President, Sales Quin Millar • National Sales Director Peter Bartrem • Sales Manager Barry Paton • Vice-President, Business Ventures Tracy Day • Vice-President, Creative Jeff Smith • Vice-President, Marketing & Interactive Jodi Brown, Vice-President, Finance Phil Jameson METRO SASKATOON • Telephone: 306-649-2025 • Toll free: 1-877-895-7193 • Fax: 1-888-895-6931 • Advertising: adinfosaskatoon@metronews.ca • Distribution: saskatoon_distribution@metronews.ca • News tips: saskatoon@metronews.ca • Letters to the Editor: saskatoonletters@metronews.ca

The 20-year itch

Unwilling to start collecting dust in the seat crack of pop music, a spate of bands whose heydays are a couple decades in the rear view are back with a vengeance. Hollaback No Doubt, Garbage, Cranberries, and I Mother Earth, and, not to be left out of the fold, The Backstreet Boys, are once again back in the spotlight.

MIKE DOJC
scene@metronews.ca

Backstreet Boys

Heyday: 1996-2000

Kevin, AJ, Brian, Howie, and Nick are back alright…but are they still everything you need? While the aging heartthrobs released a pair of albums in Kevin's absence, '07s Unbreakable and '09s This is Us, the band's core audience has been inconsolable since the oft-goateed member left. The reunion kicks off August 31 with a free concert in Central Park. A new album and a full-scale tour set for spring of next year is also in the works. Fans who can't wait that long to get their fix of returning singer Kevin Richardson can hunt down a pair of indie flicks he starred in this year: The Casserole Club, a wife-swapping drama set in the 1960s, and The Bloody Indulgent, a vampire musical.

Signature Songs: I Want it That Way, Show me the Meaning, As Long as You Love Me

The Cranberries

Heyday: 1993-1999

This Limerick-Ireland-based quartet hadn't released a studio album since 2001, and fans were missing their lush and lilting brand of poignant sonic dreamscapes. Seamlessly alternating between sweet "di, do-do doo" lullabies and more attitudinally tart fare, the Cranberries are at their best when they temper their melodic sweetness with notes of sour anguish. The band sticks to their knitting on 2012's Roses, re-teaming with their original producer Stephen Street to recapture their magic. During their downtime, singer Dolores O'Riordan dropped a pair of solo albums and lead guitarist Noel Hogan delved into electronica starting up Monoband, which spun into the side project's current incarnation, Arkitekt. Since reconvening, the Cranberries have been busy busting out tunes on the road and will be on a European swing this coming fall with stops from Bucharest to Barcelona and many points between.

Signature Songs: Dreams, Linger, Zombie

Garbage

Heyday: 1995-2001

With a name that gives a wry wink at the disposable nature of pop music, Garbage, assembled by Butch Vig (the super producer behind Nirvana's Nevermind), and a couple of his rock-vet pals, was originally a side project. Tapping Angelfish singer Shirley Manson to front the band made them one of the decade's steamiest acts. After seven years of hibernation following the underrated Bleed Like Me, Garbage returned with the nostalgia-mining Not Your Kind of People. Garbage's new material recycles the post-Grunge underpinnings of their self-titled debut and melds it with the spit-shined polish of their sophomore release Version 2.0 to create a vital new sound. During their self imposed exile pouty-lipped Manson stole scenes as a chilly yet sexy liquid metal Terminator in FOX's The Sarah Connor Chronicles while Vig earned himself a Grammy producing Green Day's 21st Century Breakdown.

Signature Songs: Only Happy When It Rains, Stupid Girl, I Think I'm Paranoid

I Mother Earth

Heyday: 1993-1999

After an eight-year layoff since disbanding in the aftermath of 2003's The Quicksilver Meat Dream, IME was resurrected when they took the stage at Toronto's Sound Academy this past March for a pair of sold out shows. Bryan Byrnes, who took over from Edwin on 1999's Blue Green Orange, is back behind the mic and the Tanna brothers Christian and Jagori unleashing the band's beefy sonic onslaught on drums and guitar while Bruce Gordon checks back in on bass. The new single We Got the Love is a hard rocking, high-wattage pick-me-up that stands up to the band's most loved hits and longtime fans are lapping it up. With fellow mid-90s Canadian alt-rock radio regulars Treble Charger and Tea Party also recently getting their acts back together we smell a formidable triple bill in the near future.

Signature Songs: Levitate, One More Astronaut, Another Sunday

No Doubt

Heyday: 1992-2001

Ska-revivalists No Doubt rocked steady throughout the 1990s but haven't jammed on new material in over a decade. Settle Down, the first single of their upcoming album Push and Shove, is a bouncy tour de force produced by Diplo (Beyoncé, M.I.A) charged by waves of Caribbean dancehall and frontwoman Gwen Stefani's infectiously perky pop-vocals. Since they've been gone the platinum blonde singer has released a pair of well-received solo albums, started a couple of fashion labels in L.A.M.B. and Harajuku Lovers, and gave birth to her two sons Kingston and Zuma. Bottle blonde bassist Tony Kanal also kept busy producing and laying down tracks with the likes of Pink and Weezer.

Signature Songs: Just a Girl, Don't Speak, Hey Baby

Ricky Martin. Singer loving the Broadway life

Ricky Martin says Broadway is a monster that requires discipline, concentration and dedication, but Evita's Che is feeling so happy and so at home that he can't imagine moving for a while. In an interview at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in Times Square, New York, which houses the musical based on the life of Argentina's first lady Eva Peron, Martin said he's never been challenged as much as in the Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber spectacle and that this is, precisely, what has him "hooked" on Broadway, where he debuted in 1996 as Marius in Les Miserables. Martin has already decided to stay in the Big Apple at least for a while, calling it a "fascinating" and multicultural city for his soon-to-be-twins, Matteo and Valentino.

You were born for the stage and certainly for one on Broadway. Any immediate plans to work on other musicals or plays after Evita?
I love being onstage. I love what's happening with Evita. The reaction that I get every night from the audience, the emotions, the feeling, what I'm feeling every night onstage is, is simply beautiful. It's never the same, you never get bored, it's very challenging. Do I want to come back to Broadway? I would love to do Broadway the rest of my life! Because it's challenging, because it makes me grow as an actor, as an entertainer, as an artist, and that's what I need, that's what I'm hooked on.

Would you consider staying here in New York?
I AM staying here in New York! Those are my plans. Anything can change in show business, you know how it goes, everything changes from one day to the other. But my idea is to stay here for a while.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ricky Martin. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scene in brief

Studios silent on box office brags

A Warner Bros. executive emailed a fact sheet about The Dark Knight Rises to Hollywood reporters a few days ago and ended with two hopeful syllables for the film's box-office prospects: "Ka ching." Cash registers have indeed been ringing at theatres worldwide this weekend as millions shell out for the finale to Christopher Nolan's epic Batman trilogy. But the shootings that left 12 dead and 58 wounded at a Dark Knight Rises screening in Colorado on Friday have silenced the usual box-office crowing by studios to let the world know they've unleashed another blockbuster. Warner, the studio behind the Batman flicks, decided to hold off on releasing debut numbers for The Dark Knight Rises this weekend out of respect to the shooting victims and their families. Other studios followed suit, saying that like Warner, they would not issue their usual Sunday estimates, waiting instead until Monday, when they normally release final dollar counts for the weekend. There's no doubt that The Dark Knight Rises will be the No. 1 film in America and beyond. Before Warner opted against weekend box-office reporting, the studio announced that the film took in $30.6 million domestically from shows that started just after midnight Friday.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the web

PBS gives Downton Abbey season 3 sneak peek

Mariah Carey. ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Mariah Carey eyes judges role on Idol

With Mariah Carey rumored to be close to signing on as a new judge for American Idol, the last remaining judge for the reality singing competition wants to make it clear that he isn't going anywhere.

While serving as guest host on The View last week, Randy Jackson announced that he is not leaving American Idol, despite speculation he might be following Jennifer Lopez and Steven Tyler, who recently left the show.

"Steven and Jennifer are truly two of the most talented and consummate professionals I've worked with," Jackson recently told Gossip Cop about his co-workers' departure. "I was friends with them before we hopped on this crazy journey together and I have no doubt our friendships will continue long after." Jackson's statement still leaves open the possibility that he'll move from the judges' table to a mentorship role on the show, leading to a completely new panel of judges.

Katie Holmes

Katie Holmes making return to Broadway

Katie Holmes is wasting no time getting back to work after he divorce drama with Tom Cruise — starting with a return to Broadway.

Holmes is slated to star in Smash creator Theresa Rebeck's new play, Dead Accounts, according to Us Weekly.

The play will open this fall at New York's Music Box Theatre.

Holmes previously appeared on Broadway in All My Sons in 2008.

METRO DISH

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Group going Gaga over her gay ways

THE WORD
Monica Weymouth
scene@metronews.ca

Pop stars can't catch a break today from the crazies.

The Florida Family Association is blaming Lady Gaga's hit single Born This Way and the singer's charitable foundation of the same name for encouraging teens to feel like worthwhile humans.

"Born This Way sends an irresponsible message to many teens who would have eventually chose to be straight," says the organization's website. "Thousands of kids who might have otherwise worked through their pubescent sexual identity issues (to) be inspired to accept the wrong choice based upon (her) unscientific, emotionally charged propaganda,"

The group is also encouraging followers to boycott retail chain Office Depot for donating $1 million to the Born This Way foundation.

No, guys — just no.

Although we do worry she sends an irresponsible message to the many teens who would have eventually chose not to wear a dress made from decapitated Muppets.

Posh Spice.

Wannabe singers looking to Spice up Olympics

The Spice Girls are set to reunite for a performance to mark the closing of the 2012 Summer Olympics in London on Aug. 12, a source confirms to Us Weekly.

The group, which split up in 2001, hasn't performed together since their 2008 reunion tour. All five original members will be taking part, according to the source, and the group is expected to do two songs, including their debut hit, Wannabe. Other performers at the event will include George Michael, the Who and Jessie J, according to the source.

Usher.

Usher struggles with stepson's death

R&B singer Usher is mourning the death of his 11-year-old stepson, Kyle Glover, who succumbed to injuries suffered in a jet ski accident earlier this month, according to TMZ.

Glover was riding on an inner tube being towed by a motor boat when a family friend's jet ski collided with him on Lake Lanier, Atlanta, Ga.

The boy was hospitalized and declared brain dead shortly after.

Twitter

@MissKellyO
I NEED HELP FROM A TECHY! i just deleted a really important work email from my trash how can i get it back?

@victoriabeckham
London is AMAZING!!! so beautiful!!!! love being home, on a boat trip with the kids!!!

@rejectedjokes
Just filled out a Mad Lib with Justin Beiber. He put SWAG in for everything. Noun, verb, pronoun... everything. SWAG.

@ConanOBrien
Athletes at the Olympics are being issued 15 condoms each. Or as the men's table tennis players put it, "14 condoms too many."

Her husband donated sperm

Families. ...to a lesbian couple, and that's fine by her, says one mom

KOA BECK
mommyish.com

One lesbian couple accepts a sperm donation from a family friend. THINKSTOCK

Alana's husband had never donated sperm before. Although the mother of three had contemplated egg donation from time-to-time, her husband had never considered the opportunity to help a family in need, both before their marriage and after.

But when the couple's friends Jennie and Susan watched yet another sperm donor fall through, Alana and her husband decided to present them with an offer.

Two years ago after Alana welcomed her third child, Jennie and Susan were approaching the year mark of a struggle to get pregnant. Many legal barriers prevented the aspiring mommies from even getting married, let alone becoming parents — a predicament that deeply touched both Alana and her husband.

After consulting a lawyer on waiving all parental rights, the couple approached Jennie and Susan with the chance to use "their" sperm.

"They were surprised and grateful because the area where we lived is very conservative and most of our mutual friends were either neutral to their struggle or privately against it," Alana remembers.

The ladies didn't just hop at any sperm sample though.

Quoted

"An anonymous sperm donor had never appealed to the couple and the idea of reaching out to friends with similar values greatly interested them."

Only after some questioning about her husband's health and family medical history — which included no major genetic diseases — did the two mommies green light the idea. An anonymous sperm donor had never appealed to the couple and the idea of reaching out to friends who shared similar values greatly interested them. A sparkling family medical history and Alana's three healthy children ultimately had the two women consenting to expand their family with her husband's sperm.

She describes Jennie and her partner as being "very open" to both Alana and her family having limited involvement with the hypothetical child, hashing out potential visits and the routine sending of photos.

The "crunchy, natural lifestyle" ladies were adamant about attempting a more "organic" method for conception before going the IVF route. Upon removing heterosexual sex from the table, the soon-to-be mommies decided on at-home insemination and asked Alana's husband to deposit a sperm sample in a sterile cup at their home. Within the next hour, the couple used a sterile medical syringe, similar to what is used with infants, inside Susan. Although the couple was prepared to go through five rounds of at-home insemination before trying more conventional approaches, the mothers conceived on their second round — a rarity for their preferred method. Susan and Jennie eventually welcomed a baby girl.

"Jennie and Susan are two of the most loving, awesome people we have ever met and if anyone deserved to be mothers it was them. My husband and I both feel honoured and touched that we could be a part of helping them realize their dream of being parents," Alana tells Mommyish. "But in the end they are her mommies and my husband and I are just family friends."

First peanuts, now eggs

Doctors have reversed allergies in some children and teens by giving them tiny daily doses of problem foods, gradually training their immune systems to accept them.

In the best test of this yet, about a dozen kids were able to overcome allergies to eggs, one of the most ubiquitous foods, lurking in everything from pasta and veggie burgers to mayonnaise and even marshmallows. Some of the same doctors used a similar approach on several kids with peanut allergies a few years ago.

Don't try this yourself, though. It takes special products, a year or more and close supervision because severe reactions remain a risk, say doctors involved in the study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

"This experimental therapy can safely be done only by properly trained physicians," says a statement from Dr. Anthony Fauci, director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, the federal agency that sponsored the study.

It didn't work for everyone, and some dropped out of the study because of allergic reactions. But the results "really do show there is promise for future treatment" and should be tested now in a wider group of kids, said the study's leader, Dr. A. Wesley Burks, pediatrics chief at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Training a child's immune system to tolerate even small amounts of egg to prevent a major reaction was the study's goal. It enrolled 55 children ages five to 18. Forty were given tiny daily amounts of powdered egg white, the part that usually causes the allergy. The other 15 were given a dummy treatment for comparison. The amounts were increased every two weeks until kids in the treatment group were eating about one third of an egg each day.

Doctors are working on reversing egg allergies in kids and teens. ISTOCK

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

3 LIFE

Health

Whooping cough rising

The U.S. appears to be headed for its worst year for whooping cough in more than five decades, with the number of cases rising at an epidemic rate that experts say may reflect a problem with the effectiveness of the vaccine.

Nearly 18,000 cases have been reported so far — more than twice the number seen at this point last year, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Thursday. At this pace, the number for the entire year will be the highest since 1959, when 40,000 illnesses were reported.

Nine children have died, and health officials called on adults — especially pregnant women and those who spend time around children — to get a booster shot as soon as possible.

Whooping cough has generally been increasing for years, but this year's spike is startling. Health investigators are trying to figure out what's going on, and theories include better detection and reporting of cases, some sort of evolution in the bacteria that cause the illness, or shortcomings in the vaccine.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the Web

Watch out, Tim Hortons: Canadians getting hooked on single-serve coffee machines

Go wild for Wild Mushroom Risotto sans all the calories

Wild Mushroom Risotto with Parmesan and Asparagus

This recipe serves four. RYAN SZULC, FROM ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

I love risottos but the restaurant versions are loaded with butter, cream or cheese. This risotto is easy to make and has little fat and few calories by comparison (4.9 g of fat and 196 calories per serving).

For a more elegant risotto, try using truffle oil.

Ingredients

- 2 tsp vegetable oil
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 tsp finely chopped garlic
- 4 cups chopped wild mushrooms (try oyster, shiitake and/or portobello)
- 1 cup arborio rice
- 3 1/2 cups vegetable stock
- 1 cup chopped asparagus (cut into 1-inch pieces)
- 1/3 cup grated Parmesan
- pinch of salt and pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh basil

1. Lightly coat saucepan with cooking spray, add oil and set over medium-high heat. Add onion and garlic, and sauté 5 mins. or until onions are just tender and lightly browned. Add the mushrooms and sauté for about 8 minutes or until the mushrooms are no longer wet.

2. Add arborio rice and sauté 1 minute. Add 1 cup of the stock and simmer until the stock has just been absorbed. Continue adding 1/2 cup stock at a time, stirring until absorbed; repeat until all the stock has been used (about 20 minutes in total). Add the chopped asparagus with the last 2 cups of stock and cook until the asparagus is tender-crisp, about 3 minutes, and the liquid is absorbed.

3. Add all but 2 tbsp of the grated Parmesan cheese, the salt and pepper and mix well. Garnish with the remaining Parmesan and the basil. Serve warm. ROSE REISMAN'S FAMILY FAVORITES (WHITECAP BOOKS)

Healthy eating

Choose it and lose it

ROSE REISMAN
for more, visit
rosereisman.com

We all have an inner kid and that kid most likely loves chocolate. Be careful because your sweet tooth may cost you.

Glosette Almonds (85 gms)

460 calories/ 34 gm fat/ 30 g sugar
A handful of these chocolate-covered almonds contains one third of your daily calories and half your daily fat. It's also tough to stop at one handful.

Equivalent

One 85-gram box of Glosette Almonds is equal in fat to six strawberry sundaes from McDonald's.

Juinor Mints (85 gms)

340 calories/ 8.5 gm fat/ 68 g sugar
Chocolate-covered mints contain less calories and fat but more sugar.

World screams for Canadian gelato

HEATHER GREENWOOD DAVIS
Life@metronews.ca

What does it take for a Canadian to beat out a host of artisans from around the world in the land where Gelato reigns king?

Some Quebec maple syrup, California pecans (toasted and infused with Maldon sea salt, as well as caramelized) and a whole lot of moxy.

Luckily, James Coleridge has all three.

The Ottawa-born gelato maker, whose Vancouver shop Bella Gelateria regularly has lineups out the door at its sole location, got word this month that he's won two of the coveted top prizes at the Gelato Festival in Florence, Italy.

The competition is the world's largest for gelato makers and Coleridge beat out 29 Italians for the top prize.

"I consider myself a custodian of an old-world process," says Coleridge, who admits he "jumped around like a jellybean for about a half hour" when he heard the news that he'd won both the technical jury prize and the People's Choice awards.

Being an artisanal gelato maker is about more than the all-natural ingredients that go into the process, Coleridge says. He uses his Italian training, skill, artistry and dedication to whip up fresh small batches of his Gelato creations (that range from Tahitian Vanilla to the award-winning Noce Pecan e Sciroppo d'Acero Canadese – Pecan and Canadian Maple Syrup) from original recipes that can take as long as 45 days to perfect.

Still, he says there are plenty of ways you can enjoy gelato at home.

"Gelato is best eaten fresh and not stored in a freezer for much time," he cautions.

Another tip: "Serve it using a tablespoon, never an ice cream scoop! (Scoops) are an ice cream thing," says Coleridge who is clear, "Gelato is not ice cream. We don't use their paraphernalia."

HEATHER GREENWOOD DAVIS IS A FREELANCE WRITER BASED IN TORONTO. FIND HER AT GLOBETROTTINGMAMA.COM

"Gelato is best eaten fresh and not stored in a freezer for much time," says gelato maker James Coleridge. ISTOCK

Dlo CARPENTRY
INTERIOR FINISHING
Full bathroom, basement, and kitchen renovations.
No job too small or too big!
Devin Logan
(306) 203-6441
devinlogan@gmail.com
www.facebook.com/Dlocarpentry

A new line of duty: Former cop reaches out by writing his way to recovery

Success in sobriety. Gary Rubie has penned a book to help those out there in pain

THE IN-CREDIBILITY FACTOR
Teresa Kruze
life@metronews.ca

As a police officer with 25 years of service, Gary Rubie dealt with suicides, assaults, homicides, armed robberies and the murders of 15 police officers.

The work-related trauma took its toll and Rubie started to experience nightmares and overwhelming depression.

He ended up addicted to alcohol and pain killers.

Gary was diagnosed with post-traumatic stress disorder and got help.

He started to write about his experiences and was eventually encouraged to put his stories and poems into a book called Out On a Cliff.

"I want to stop one person from committing suicide. For the person suffering from crippling depression I want them to know there is a light at the end of the tunnel.

If one person is about to pick up a drink or use drugs there is another way out. You don't have to destroy your mind and body anymore."

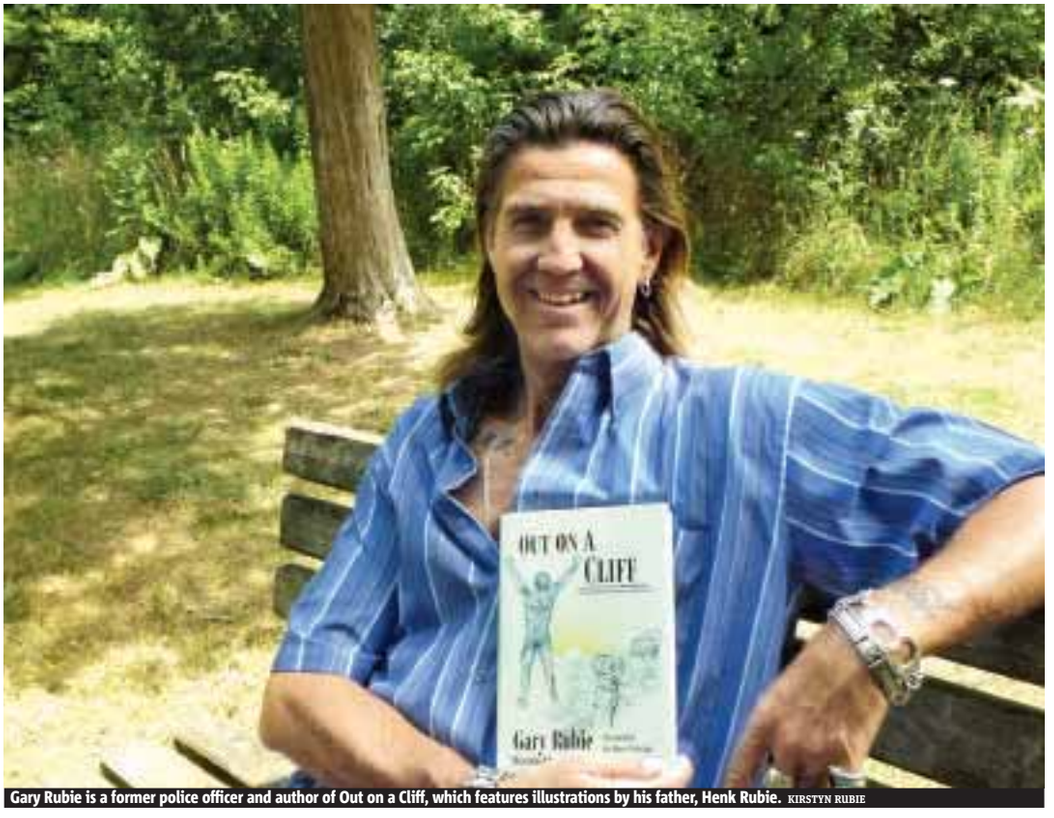
For 25 years, Rubie put his life on the line everyday as a police officer. Today, he has a new career. He's giving people hope.

"It's a miracle I'm alive today. I should have been dead 20 times over. From now on I plan to give back and help others."

Don't give up

"I want to stop one person from committing suicide. For the person suffering from crippling depression I want them to know there is a light at the end of the tunnel. If one person is about to pick up a drink or use drugs there is another way out."

Gary Rubie



Gary Rubie is a former police officer and author of Out on a Cliff, which features illustrations by his father, Henk Rubie. KIRSTYN RUBIE

Correction

The In-Credibility Factor: July 16

- Last week's In-Credibility column featured singer Meredith Shaw, whose Girl Who Believes contest was listed as being open to girls 11-17. The contest is, in fact, open to female applicants 11 years old and up.

Help yourself

Thoughts on recovery

- Surrender and be completely honest
- Turn your will and your power over to something greater than you
- Live one day at a time
- Be kind and gentle with yourself
- Self forgiveness is the key to internal healing.

NOW IS THE TIME TO APPLY to become a SCHOOL BUS DRIVER for SEPTEMBER

Free training classes are filling up. Spaces will be limited. This steady secure part-time job is the perfect income supplement for retirees, stay-at-home moms or the self-employed.

Make a difference in a child's life! Call now! 306-343-5032
E-mail: peggy.caudle@firstgroup.com

We are an equal opportunity employer.

First Student Canada

Stop Dreaming... Start Flying...

Mitchinson Flying Service Ltd.

Become a Pilot!!

SPACE STILL AVAILABLE FOR THE JANUARY SIAST PROGRAM!

Phone 306-244-6714 or visit our website www.mitchinsonflyingservice.com

4 SPORTS

MLB

"My inclusion in the Hall of Fame is the ultimate validation. I want to thank you all for helping me along the way."

Former Cincinnati Reds star Barry Larkin, who was inducted into the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum on Sunday in Cooperstown, N.Y. Larkin, who played his entire 19-year career with the Reds, retired after the 2004 season with a .295 career batting average, 2,340 hits, 1,329 runs scored and 379 stolen bases. The late Ron Santo, star third baseman for the Chicago Cubs and later a broadcaster for the team, was also inducted Sunday.

"This is not a sad day. This is a great day. I'm certain that Ronnie is celebrating right now."

Ron Santo's widow, Vicki

Mobile sports

LeBron James finally got his championship and Kevin Durant might be the NBA's brightest young star. But entering the twilight of his illustrious career, Kobe Bryant is the most sought-after personality when the U.S. Olympic basketball team heads overseas. Scan the code for the story.

Ernie Els holds up the Claret Jug trophy after winning the British Open Golf Championship at Royal Lytham and St Annes golf club Sunday in England.
PETER MORRISON/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Easy does it: Els takes Open title

PGA. Australian Adam Scott bogeys final four holes while Els finds something special

Quoted

"I'm going to try and come and see you this evening. I'm supposed to go to Canada but I think I'm going to blow that thing off." In his victory speech, Ernie Els said that he planned to visit his family in London. His quip about skipping the Canadian Open sent staff scrambling to try to confirm he was coming. They could not confirm, though the South African said in his speech he would try to get to Canada on Tuesday.

Ernie Els felt something special could happen at the British Open, and it did.

All because of a collapse by Adam Scott that no one imagined.

Four shots ahead with four holes to play — after eight straight holes with nothing worse than par — Scott bogeyed them all and had to fight back tears on the 18th green Sunday as the magnitude of his meltdown began to sink in.

Els, who started the final round six shots behind, finished off a flawless back nine with a 15-foot birdie putt for a 2-under 68 that looked as if it would do little more than lock up another runner-up finish at Royal Lytham and St. Annes. Instead, he wound up with his second British Open — the other one was 10 years ago at Muirfield — and fourth major championship.

"Amazing," Els said. "I'm still numb. It still hasn't set in. It will probably take quite a few days because I haven't been in this position for 10 years, obviously. So it's just crazy, crazy, crazy getting here."

The celebration was muted, unlike his other three majors.

"First of all, I feel for Adam Scott. He's a great friend of mine," Els said. "Obviously, we both wanted to win very badly. But you know, that's the nature of the beast. That's why we're out here. You win, you lose. It was my time for some reason."

Scott said: "I had it in my hands with four to go. I managed to hit a poor shot on each of the closing four holes. Look, I played so beautifully for most of the week. I shouldn't let this bring me down.

"I can't justify anything that I've done out there. I didn't finish the tournament well today. But next time — I'm sure there will be a next time, and I can do a better job of it."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tour de France. Wiggins blazes trail for British cycling

Twenty-three years ago, Bradley Wiggins marvelled as Greg LeMond blazed a trail as America's first Tour de France winner. Now, he has blazed his own.

The 32-year-old from gritty northwest London became Britain's first winner of cycling's greatest race on Sunday, ending a 75-year drought for his country with an imperial conquest of the roads in France.

Wiggins had locked up the yellow jersey a day earlier by winning the final time-trial and Sunday's ride onto the Champs-Élysées was largely ceremonial for him.

But putting the coveted shirt to work one last time, he added a touch of class by providing a lead out to Sky teammate and fellow Briton Mark Cavendish to get his third Tour stage victory — the 23rd of his career — in a sprint. The Isle of Man native is a main contender to win road-race gold at the Olympics in London, which has been a hovering presence over the peloton in this Tour.

Wiggins congratulated his teammates after crossing the line, hugged his wife, and clutched the hands of their two children. A soprano sang "God Save the Queen," and Wiggins thanked the crowd with a touch of British humour.

"Cheers, have a safe journey home, don't get too drunk," he quipped.

"It's been a magical couple of weeks for the team and for British cycling," Wiggins said. "Some dreams come true. My mother over there ... her son has won the Tour de France."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bradley Wiggins leads teammate Mark Cavendish past the Arc de Triomphe on the Champs-Élysées Sunday in Paris. DOUG PENSINGER/GETTY IMAGES

MLB

Jays complete sweep of Red Sox

Brett Lawrie hit the game's first pitch for one of Toronto's four homers and the Blue Jays tagged Jon Lester for a career-worst 11 runs in a 15-7 victory that completed a three-game sweep over the Boston Red Sox on Sunday.

J.P. Arencibia, Rajai Davis and Travis Snider also homered for the Blue Jays.

Toronto (48-47) posted a season high for runs and climbed out of the AL East cellar, moving a half-game ahead of the Red Sox (48-48). The Blue Jays matched their season high with 18 hits.

Henderson Alvarez (6-7) pitched 5 2/3 innings, giving up seven runs.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Motor racing

Castroneves gets breakthrough in Edmonton

After four years of frustration, Helio Castroneves finally broke through Sunday and won the Edmonton Indy.

The Brazilian racer beat frontrunner Alex Tagliani out of the final pit stop, took the lead, and held off Japan's Takuma Sato by less than a second for the checkered flag at the City Centre Airport.

Will Power, Castroneves' Penske teammate, was third, 5.4 seconds off the pace.

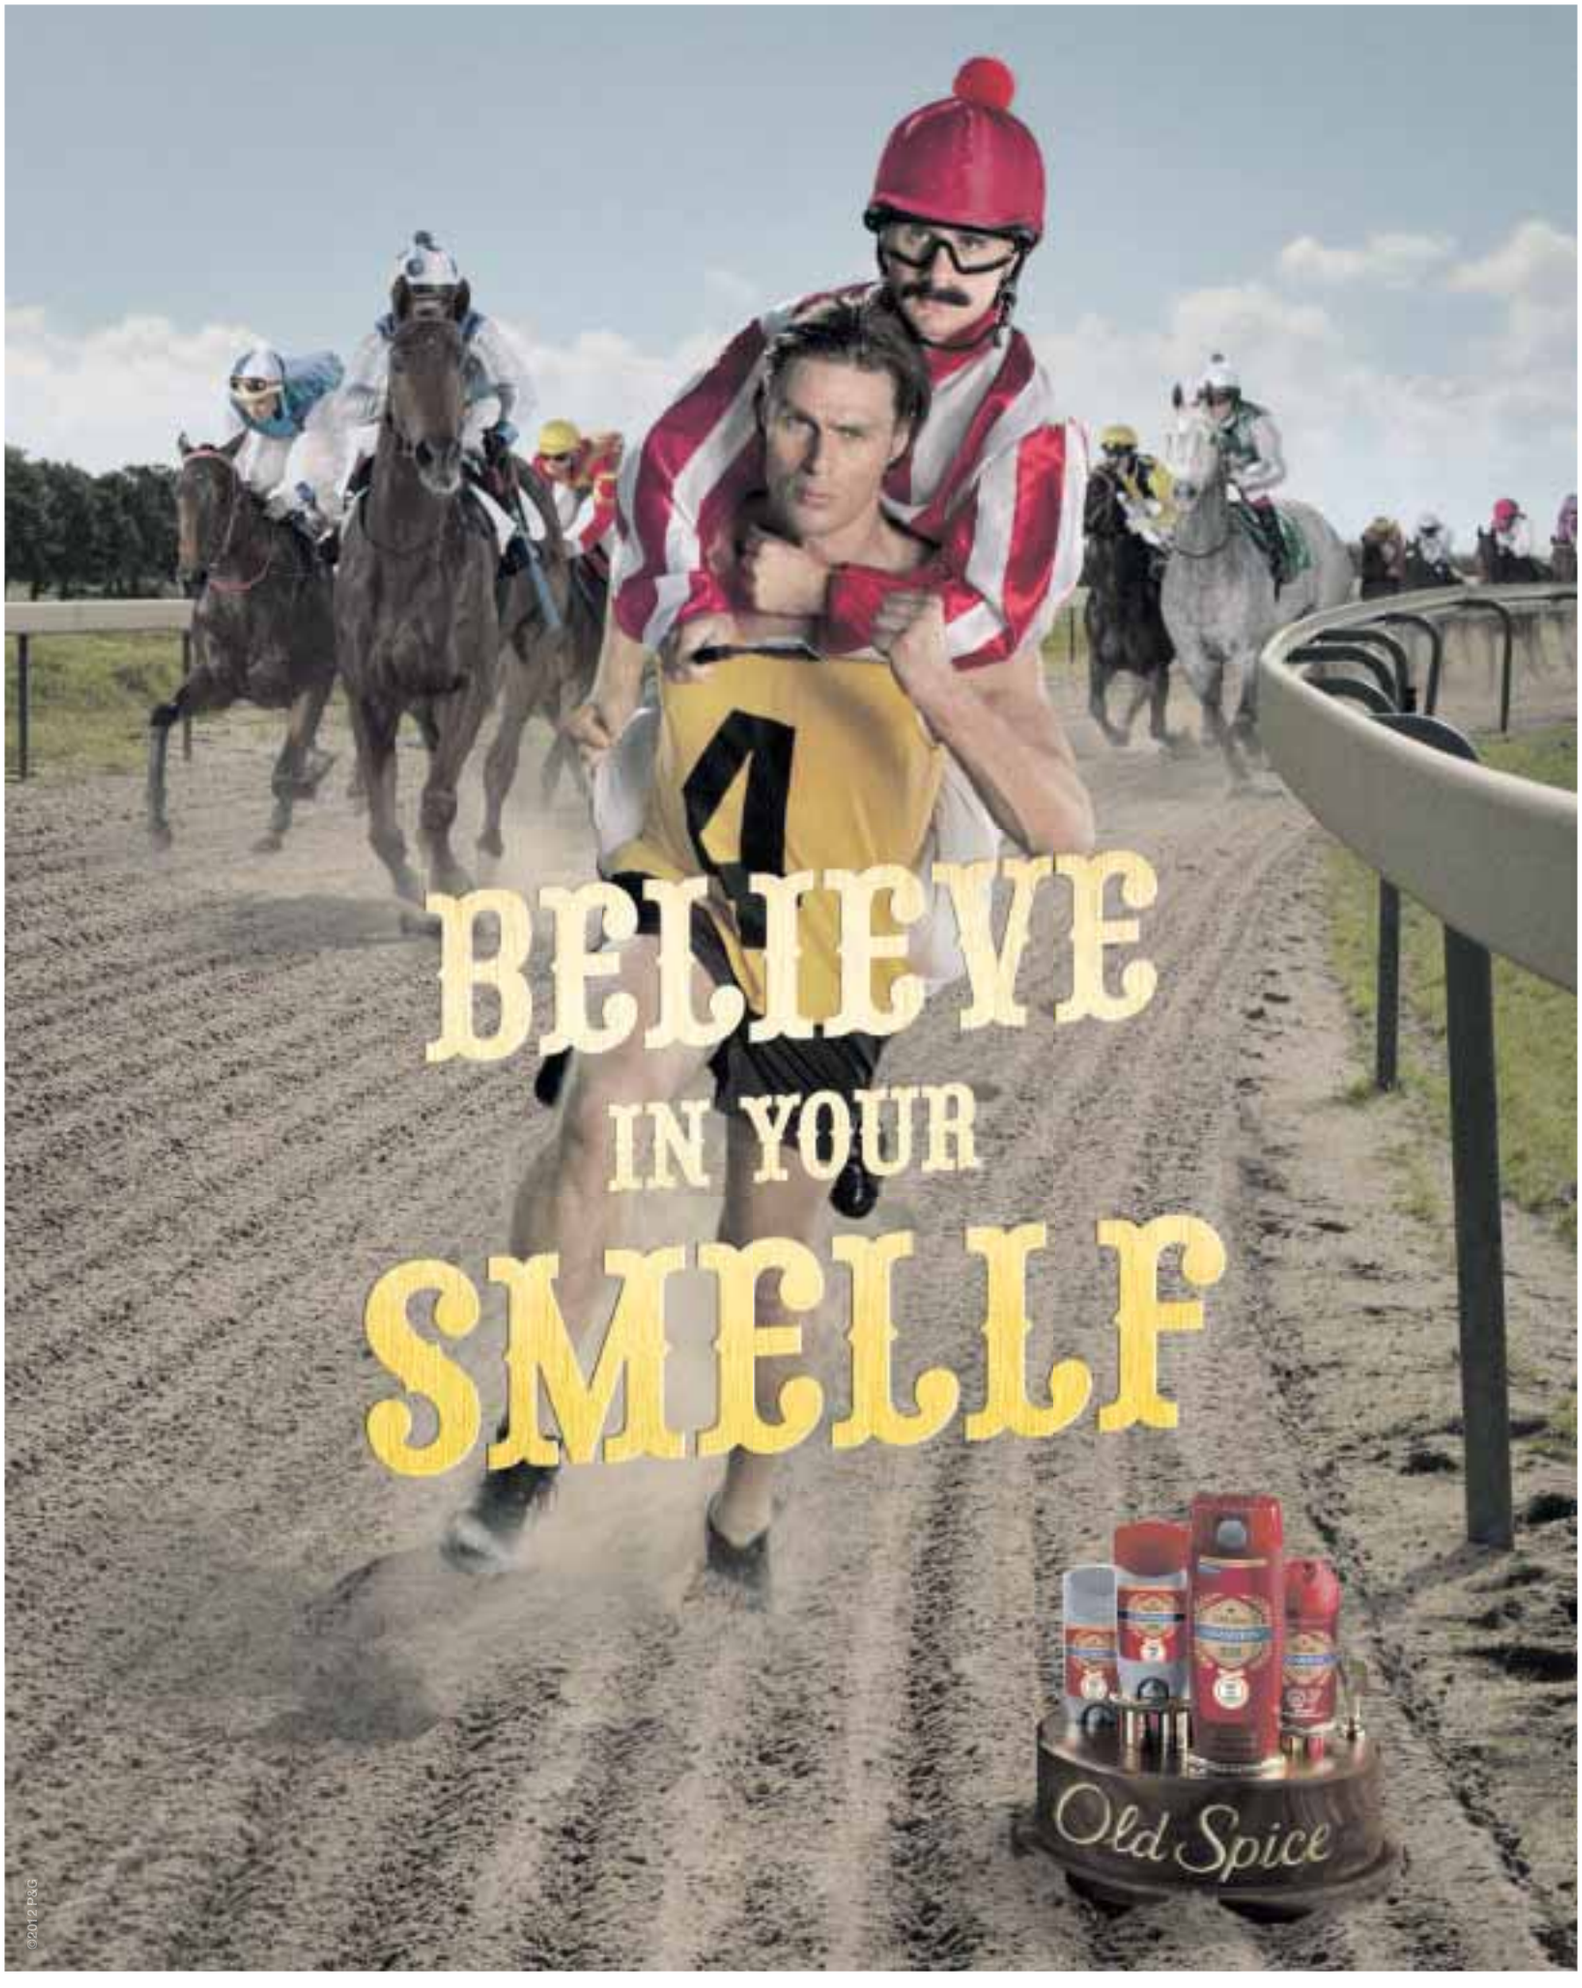
For Castroneves, it was a big weight off his shoulders in the Alberta capital.

He had finished second three times in the last four races in Edmonton. In 2010 he took the checkered flag only to be stripped of the win for blocking Power.

"It's my second win here — but today it counts," said the 37-year-old from Sao Paulo.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Helio Castroneves celebrates at the IndyCar race Sunday in Edmonton. THE CANADIAN PRESS



BELIEVE
IN YOUR
SMELL
Old Spice
©2012 P&G

Gaining power from the past

Weightlifting. Medal contender Girard inspired by Canada's former strong-women

Quoted

"That's what I want to experience at the Olympics, that the world knows we are nice and polite in Canada but that doesn't mean we can't compete."
Canadian weightlifter Christine Girard

The heaviest thing on Christine Girard's shoulders at the Olympics may be the legacy left by the Canadian female weightlifters that came before her.

But it's not a burden that slows her down. It only adds extra inspiration for London.

Girard, who grew up in Rouyn-Noranda, Que., is thinking particularly of Maryse Turcotte, who competed for Canada in the 2000 and 2004 Summer Olympics and won gold in two Commonwealth Games and one Pan American Games before she retired.

"I have enormous respect for Maryse and for what she did," Girard said from White Rock, B.C., where she trains and lives with her husband and coach Walter Bailey. "She was one of the first to stand out at the international level.

"Maryse showed what it's possible to do, she dared to do it. I want to do the same thing and hope to push things further in the future."

Girard hopes to add to the history in London, where she will compete in the 63-kilogram event on July 31. If she makes the podium, she'll be the first Canadian woman to get an Olympic medal in that discipline.

The 27-year-old, who was born in Elliot Lake, Ont., is not discouraged by incidents of doping within her sport.

"They have their reasons and I know this is not always their choice as an athlete," she said of those who cheat. "My goal is to show that if you work hard you can beat the others. Maybe it takes more years of training to get to that point — for me, it's 17 years — but I honestly think it's possible."

Girard is on her way to proving her point. She lifted 135 kilograms in the clean-and-jerk in training earlier this year — tying the Olympic record — and recently hoisted 136 kilograms.

"I've spent years testing that every month," she said. "If I'm capable of doing that in training, then others can too."

Girard, who was fourth at the Beijing Games, holds the record in the snatch and in total weight in her class at the Commonwealth Games — 60 kilograms — and the Pan American Games (63 kilograms).

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Christine Girard of Canada competes at the Beijing Olympics in August 2008. EZRA SHAW/GETTY IMAGES

Torch reaches new heights in London

Amelia Hempleman-Adams poses with the Olympic flame on top of a London Eye pod on the torch-relay leg through London on Sunday. Hempleman-Adams took the torch on a trip on the giant observation wheel on the south side of the River Thames, riding atop one of the Eye's viewing capsules as it slowly rotated. The 17-year-old Hempleman-Adams was the youngest person to ski to the South Pole last year. The Olympic flame continues its weeklong journey around London, after spending more than 60 days touring Britain. LEWIS WHYLD/LOCOG/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Track-and-field. U.S.-born athletes make up most of Haiti's small Olympic squad

Four of Haiti's five Olympians at the London Games have something in common — they're not from Haiti.

With millions of Haitians living on $2 a day or less and hundreds of thousands of people rendered homeless by a devastating earthquake two years ago, the country struggles to produce world-class athletes. But those with Haitian links are eager to represent the small Caribbean country.

"I still feel Haitian even if I wasn't born there," 21-year-old sprinter Marlena Wesh said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press.

Wesh, who will run the 200 and 400 metres at the Olympics, grew up in Virginia but her parents are from Haiti.

Besides having family ties to Haiti, the four foreign-born Olympians will be competing in track-and-field, including a former roommate of Facebook founder Mark Zuckerberg.

Samyr Laine, a 28-year-old triple jumper from New York, roomed with Zuckerberg at Harvard.

He hopes to eventually form a non-profit group called the Jump for Haiti Foundation, a sports program to produce future Olympic athletes from the country. Laine said he plans to call on his friends, including his roommate-turned-billionaire, to donate a few dollars.

"I hope they see the merits of my cause," Laine said. "I will definitely try to reach out to Mark as well."

Moise Joseph, a 30-year-old 800-metre runner, and Jeffrey Julmis, a 28-year-old 100-metre hurdler, are also on the team. Haiti's lone homegrown Olympian is Linouse Desravine, a 21-year-old judoka.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Samyr Laine will compete for Haiti in the triple jump. GETTY IMAGES FILE

Athletic infrastructure

Haiti does pose unusual challenges for athletes.

- Three of Haiti's five competitive running tracks house thousands of people in tents and shanties who were displaced by the January 2010 earthquake.
- The office of the Haitian Olympic Committee has a budget of $400,000. The U.S. Olympic Committee's budget is about $170 million US.

Libya

Released Olympic committee chief says kidnapping still a mystery

The president of Libya's Olympic Committee said hours after he returned home Sunday that his kidnapping remains a mystery but that authorities promised to investigate.

Committee chief Ahmed Nabil al-Taher al-Alam was released unharmed a week after unknown gunmen abducted him from his car in Tripoli.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Basketball

Argentina gives U.S. early exhibition test

The U.S. Olympic men's basketball team wore the throwback uniforms of the 1992 Dream Team on Sunday. The Americans' play was much different.

Kevin Durant scored 27 points and the United States held on for a narrow 86-80 victory over Argentina in an exhibition game.

The Americans got off to a hot start but their lead was down to four with 2:50 left after Manu Ginobili's three-point play. But Durant and Chris Paul hit big three-pointers as the U.S. won after being pushed for the second time in its four exhibition games. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Argentina's Pablo Prigioni dribbles past Kevin Durant on Sunday in Barcelona, Spain. GETTY IMAGES

Re-instatement

Baseball, softball agree to merge in bid to return to Olympics

Seven years after they were cut from the games, baseball and softball have agreed to merge into a single international federation in a joint bid to return to the Olympics.

The two sports, which were last played at the 2008 Beijing Games, each failed in separate attempts to win reinstatement for the 2012 and 2016 Olympics.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Social media

"Didn't think it would get mass headlines. It was an innocent tweet."

U.S. hurdler Kerron Clement, who caused a social-media stir in London. He was less than complimentary in his tweet last week after a bus taking athletes to the village had a hard time finding its destination. He let his feelings be known on Twitter.

"Um, so we've been lost on the road for 4hrs. Not a good first impression London."

Clement's tweet

Heptathlon

Injuries force Sweden's Kluft to withdraw from London Games

Swedish long jumper Carolina Kluft says she won't compete at the London Olympics, because of a hamstring injury.

The former Olympic and world heptathlon champion told Swedish tabloid Expressen she sees no point in going to London after the injury forced her to pull out of a competition in Finland.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Think big, act big and big rewards are sure to follow. The Sun in the most dynamic area of your chart means you won't let anything come between you and success. Life is a game and you love winning games.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Make some changes on the home front this week – the bigger the better. How can you lighten up your living space? What can you do to give yourself a more relaxing environment? Don't wait – just do it.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
You don't need to raise your voice to make yourself heard – but you probably will. You want to make sure everyone – colleagues and loved ones alike – knows where you are coming from, and where you are going to.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
You seem to believe that you have been hard done by. Why is that? Maybe it's not other people's fault, maybe it's your own. If you want to change your luck, first change the way you look at the world.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
Don't worry if you have not done as much as you should have in recent weeks because the Sun in your sign will give you a boost. But don't wait for good things to be given to you – get them yourself.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
A life of ease may sound inviting but what would you have to show for it in the long-term? Not much. You have so many talents and it's about time you started using them.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Friends and family members will go out of their way to assist you today and if you are sensible and act on their advice you will do well on several levels. Your social life is about to pick up dramatically too.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
The Sun in Leo at this time of year leads to changes on the work front and it is important that you do not resist what happens over the next few weeks. Go with the flow and you'll do very well indeed.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
It's time to let go of beliefs and opinions that have been holding you back and to replace them with something a bit more up-to-date. You don't have to follow the herd but you do have to widen your perspective.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
The planets are urging you to be more adventurous. There are occasions when it is right to take risks and this is one of them, so stop playing for time and start making things happen, at home and at work.

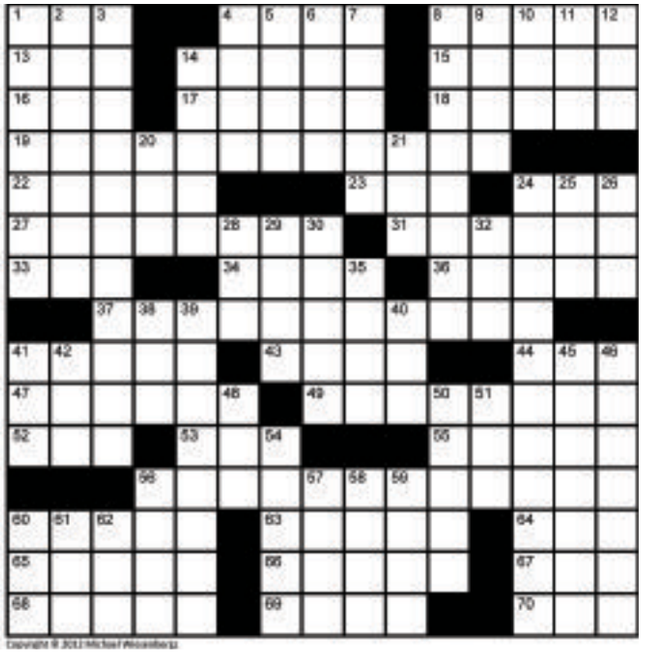
♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Put other people's interests first over the next few days, both in your personal life and at work. If you go out of your way to make life easy for others they will make it up to you big time later on.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Tear up an existing arrangement and replace it with something more to your liking. Others may not be happy about it but it is your happiness you should be thinking of.

SALLY BROMPTON

Crossword: Ontario

BY MICHAEL WIESENBERG



Across

1. Newmarket-born actor Carrey
4. Brampton-born Michael who received 2008 Canadian Comedy Award for best male performance for Superbad
8. With 68-Across, 4 out of 5 touch Ontario
13. Nabokov novel
14. What a French-Canadian traffic cop might yell
15. Where to get a date?
16. "___ gonna get it!"
17. Something to believe
18. Ghana's capital
19. Part of the War of 1812 fought April 27, 1813, at what is now Toronto
22. "___ far, far better thing that I do ..."
23. Locks linking two of 8- and 68-Across
24. Race starter
27. Library transactions
31. Scarborough or North York WRT Toronto
33. Dentistry deg.
34. Great Britain emblem
36. Timberlake's group
37. Willowdale-born comedian who hosted Deal or No Deal
41. Mary Tyler Moore Show spinoff
43. Oakville progressive rock quintet
44. Dashboard gauge
47. Broadcasters
49. Network bigshot
52. Summer in ON
53. Duncan do not
55. Israel native
56. Southernmost extent of Canada's mainland, in Lake Erie
60. Toronto-born actress Jennifer known for playing Linda on Still Standing
63. ___ Hudson: Windsor-born member of The Band
64. Vitamin stat
65. For ___: cheaply
66. Roman title
67. Auto retailer: abbr.
68. See 8-Across
69. Sway
70. Sugary ending

Down

1. Nakedness symbol
2. Conceptualized
3. Hamilton-born star of Three Amigos, Pure Luck, Mars Attacks!, Father of the Bride
4. Early Ontario inhabitants
5. Rubik of cube fame
6. Shoal
7. Lawyers: abbr.
8. Circumvent
9. Pool start
10. It's beside F1
11. Broadcast
12. US airport checkers
14. Attorney-___
20. Mao ___-tung
21. Bond, etc.
24. London-born bandleader who formed The Royal Canadians in 1924
25. Carafe
26. US network
28. Clay, after
29. Falsehoods
30. Intoxicating elixirs
32. Mad cow disease
35. Former Hungarian premier Imre
38. Poem
39. Admonitions
40. As ___: Persian poker ancestor
41. Canada's ____ Dawn Chong
42. Secreted
45. Fräulein's frocks
46. How many stupid things are done
48. Unhappy
50. "Steady ___ goes!"
51. Indian lentil dish
54. Lawn tool
56. Not yours
57. Pack cargo
58. One of 8- and 68-Across
59. "___have to do"
60. Proverb or confident suffix
61. Cape Town's nation: abbr.
62. Convex cooker

Friday's crossword

What's online

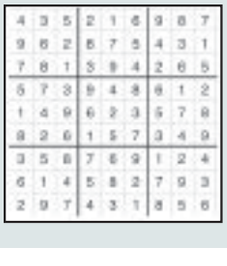
See today's answers at metronews.ca/answers.

Sudoku

How to play
Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

		9	7		8
	8					1	2
3	2				5	7
6		7	2				5
				5
	9				4	2		1
		1	6				7	9
	6	3					1
			8		9	4

Friday's Sudoku



Sharability

easy hard

metro
WHAT NOT TO WEAR
Available anywhere.
Download the NEW Metro app today.
metro
News worth sharing.